

Reflections from Previous Participants

I learned new techniques and strategies to improve donation. I think the workshops and teamwork are important to learn what issues other countries and organizations face.

- Angelica, Colombia

We have a tendency to think that the way we're doing things is the best, and sometimes we can really learn from other people.

- Michelle, USA

I have recognized a lot of issues we have in common. Training of the professionals is very important, and presumed consent is not the only solution.

- Charlotte, Sweden

Since 2010, three leading U.S. organ procurement organizations—Gift of Life Donor Program, LifeSource and OneLegacy – and TPM in Spain have collaborated to produce the Transplant Donation Global Leadership Symposium.

A Hands-on Symposium for Advanced and Emerging Organ and Tissue Donation Leaders Worldwide

Third Biennial
Transplant Donation
Global Leadership
Symposium 2014

May 18 - 22, 2014
L'Auberge Del Mar, California USA

Conference Overview

While the lifesaving value of transplantation is clear, the promise of transplantation remains unfulfilled for far too many for a number of reasons:

- The circumstances allowing for organ and tissue to occur are rare.
- Myths and unfounded fears inhibit individuals from registering as donors and families from authorizing donation on their loved one's behalf.
- Sometimes potential donors are not identified in time or physicians approach families prematurely, resulting in lost donation opportunities.
- In some places, donation and transplant professionals are hampered by underdeveloped medical, legal, and professional structures and resources.

The Transplant Donation Global Leadership Symposium is a unique learning experience to explore best practices and innovation in addressing the most pressing leadership challenges facing the donation and transplantation field. Robust dialogue and collaborative team work among 75 select attendees build relationships spanning the globe, and participants leave with broadened leadership skills, innovative ideas, and expanded professional networks.

Donation doesn't simply happen; it requires professionals with education and experience to lead the way.

Join us and help fulfill the promise of donation and transplantation throughout the world.
